Week 1 Status Report

For our first week we have done extensive research (on different senior design ideas) and meeting up with different advisors to come up with a Senior Design Project. Our project title as of now is "CELL CARD – brew based application". We have finally finalized our group members and we will now begin to start phase 1 of the project. Learning the responsibilities of organizing your thoughts and ideas have become an invaluable asset in coming up with different topics and ideas.

As group leader I have assigned each member of the group to start researching in the different topics that relate to our project. Because our project was finalized just last week we have not really moved forward on the actual project itself. Our advisor for this project is Professor Yao, and he will be assisting us every week, meeting up with our group and another group.

The first status is a bit short only because it's the first one. Once we get the project rolling, the reports will be a lot more detailed and extensive.
